GENERAL INFORMATION

Having state income tax withheld from your IRA payments, when combined with other state withholding, may relieve you from payment of estimated tax.

However, you may still be required to pay estimated tax if your total withholding and estimated tax payments are not sufficient. The amount of income tax you pay is not affected by your withholding election.

If this withholding election applies to periodic payments, we may adjust your withholding rate as required to meet future changes in withholding rates.

See reverse side for specific rules of states for which state withholding applies.

This state withholding election applies to payments described on the form to which it is attached.
